WHEAT CARGOES ARRIVE

BREAD ASSURED FOR EIGHT WEEKS

MR. LEMASS EXPECTS ENOUGH UNTIL NEXT HARVEST

AS a result of the arrival of a number of wheat cargoes, Eire now is assured of sufficient flour to maintain the present basis of distribution until July 20th or 24th.

This was announced by Mr. S. Lemass, Minister for Industry, who, striking an optimistic note in the Dail last night, suggested that there was a possibility of delivering a larger amount of flour from the mills during the next quota period, mainly for the benefit of outlying districts where other foodstuffs are scarce.

"I am optimistic," he said, "that we will succeed in getting in a sufficient quantity of wheat to enable us to maintain the present distribution of flour until the next harvest is garnered."

The average distribution of flour at present, dictated by circumstances, is 3½lb. per person per week.

Mr. LEMASS said that he was not exaggerating when he recently pointed out that, on the basis of existing stocks of flour and of present distribution, on a date towards the end of June there would be no more wheat to distribute. Fortunately a number of wheat cargoes had arrived in the course of the past few weeks, the effect of which had been to push back that date for another month. They still had to face the fact that unless further cargoes arrived upon some date in July the entire stock of wheat and flour in the country would be exhausted. That was the hard fact that had necessitated the restrictions upon the distribution of flour.

OUTLYING DISTRICTS

If he felt that the prospects of future imports of wheat were sufficiently good to justify them in taking the risk he would endeavour to ensure that for the next quota period a somewhat larger quantity of flour would be delivered from the mills, mainly for the benefit of those outlying districts in which there is a scarcity of other foodstuffs.

Mr. LEMASS said that he had difficulty in deciding whether he was entitled to take that risk or not, because while their shipping programme appeared to be capable of delivering a quantity of wheat that would justify it, a single upset to that programme would involve a loss of wheat more than would be involved in the extra distribution of flour he had in mind. In the course of the next week or so, if no mishap occurred, he would be able to make a decision whether, during the month of June, it would be possible to increase deliveries of flour in these districts. The increase could not be large, because in existing circumstances only a very small addition to the total output of flour from the mills could be contemplated. The position was that body, in any part of the country, could get all the flour they wanted, and they had been endeavouring through Press and Radio propaganda to get people living in areas where other foodstuffs were plentiful to reduce their flour consumption. If people would respond to these appeals then the extra supplies made available thereby could go into the districts where special problems existed, because the supply of alternative foodstuffs at this time of the year was restricted.

PRIVATE CAR DISCS

THE LION'S SHARE

CLERGYMEN and "others" got the lion's share of 6,841 discs issued to private car owners during May. "Others" are State and local authorities and certain public utility undertakings; they claimed 2,580 of the total. Clergymen got 2,395, and 1,536 were issued to medical doctors. Only 193 veterinary surgeons were allowed to use their cars, and all but 137 midwives were forced to face emergency calls on foot, "bike," or horse.

These figures were announced by Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Supplies, in reply to a barrage of questions by Dr. T. F. O'Higgins (F.G., Leix-Offaly) on various aspects of the private motoring ban in the Dail yesterday. The Minister was unable, however, to tell Dr. O'Higgins how many gallons of petrol were issued during the months of January, February and March of this year to motor cars used for the conveyance of Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries because "the petrol consumed in this and other State services is not subject to the Motor Spirit (Rationing) Order." He was unable to agree to the issue of a transferable disc to any class of motor vehicle owner, not even to clergymen and whole-time officers who were not engaged in competitive practice.

While a limited number of income tax collectors had been given discs for essential official duties, he had been unable to permit the use of private cars by rate collectors, he said, in answer to another question by the same deputy.

When Dr. O'Higgins challenged him to reconcile his statement that in normal times this country consumed 44,000,000 gallons of petrol in the year with the figures of petrol imports for each of the years 1932 to 1938, the Minister replied that for the twelve months ended on September 30, 1939, 44,736,950 gallons had been imported, and 444,886 gallons of this had been re-exported. To this net total of 44,292,064 gallons could be added approximately 2,000,000 gallons of spirit produced in the Haulbowline refineries and 787,000 gallons produced in the Industrial Alcohol Factories in the same year. During 1941 17,814,232 gallons of motor spirit were imported.

In answer to Dr. O'Higgins' fifth question, Mr. Lemass said that two vehicles in Government service, twelve in the service of the E.S.B. and four in that of the G.S.R. had been equipped with producer gas plants since 1939. None of the D.U.T.Co. vehicles had been so equipped.

He told Mr. A. Byrne, junior (Ind., Dublin), that a reasonable amount of petrol had been made available for the Liffey Ferry Service on the basis of the reduced service now in operation.

PLENTY OF BREAD IN BRITAIN

Lord Woolton, British Minister of Food, told members of the National Association of Master Bakers in London yesterday:—"There are few countries in Europe to-day that can say with certainty that they will have plenty of bread all through this year. I never boast. I never prophesy until I am quite certain. We shall have plenty of bread all through this year. Your supplies of raw materials are assured."

CIVILIAN DEFENCE WORK

A Civilian Defence Committee has been formed in Waterford in co-operation with the local battalion of the Local Defence Force. Eleven leading citizens discussed the matter with the commandant of the battalion, and the formation of the committee followed. It will assist the L.D.F., promote recruiting and advise on defence and other matters as they affect civilians. Mr. R. J. Hearne is chairman and Mr. Tierney, manager, Provincial Bank, is treasurer of this committee, which is one of the first permanent bodies of its kind in the country.

SIX EXECUTED IN PRAGUE

HEYDRICH'S CONDITION

SIX persons, members of two families, were shot in Prague yesterday as a result of the attack on Reinhard Heydrich on Wednesday afternoon in a Prague suburb.

All six—a husband, wife and their two sons and another man and his wife—were accused, said Prague Radio, with deliberately concealing a non-registered person "known to be engaged in activities against the Reich."

The six were:—Vaclav Stehlik, aged 45; his wife, Ruzena, aged 44, and their children, Vavlav, aged 27, and Frantisek, aged 17; Frantisek Mareska, aged 31, and his wife, Josefa, aged 28. —(Reuter.)

STERN DECREE

General Kurt Daluege, the newly-appointed Deputy Protector of Bohemia and Moravia, has issued a decree banning all Czech meetings, sports, theatrical shows and other cultural events. All other amusements, cinemas and restaurants must close at 10 p.m. German entertainments are exempt from the ban, but must observe the closing restrictions.

HERR HEYDRICH.

The doors of all houses must be locked by 11 p.m., unless "an earlier closing hour has been ruled locally."

Exceptions to the regulations are made in the case of directors and other business meetings, of which twenty-four hours' notice must be given. Railway restaurants may remain open after 10 p.m. only for the travelling public.

MAN-HUNT

Gestapo agents scoured the Czech Protectorate for the two men who wounded Reinhard Heydrich with bomb and automatic rifle in a Prague suburb on Wednesday. Herr Himmler is reported to be returning from Holland to Berlin.

Thirty-six hours' notice has been given to the whole population of Bohemia and Moravia over the age of 15 to register with the police. Anyone found after midnight yesterday without a registration card will be shot, Prague Radio said. A similar fate awaits those who "conceal any unregistered persons."

Herr Heydrich's assailants threw a bomb which exploded close to the car in which he was driving through the Prague suburb of Liben, Prague Radio said last night. The second man opened fire with an automatic rifle. After the attempt one of them ran down the Puchmayerova road; the other cycled away. The assailants had been waiting several hours for the car to pass by.

SEVERELY INJURED

According to a Reuter's Stockholm message, Herr Heydrich's condition was described in Berlin yesterday as dangerous, says the Swedish Allehanda. He underwent an operation on Wednesday night.

DAY-LONG ASSAULT ON KINHWA

TOKYO CLAIMS LANCHI

CONFLICTING versions regarding the fate of Kinhwa, the capital and vital railway city of the Chekiang Province of China, are contained in Reuter and the Associated Press reports from Chungking. According to Reuter, the city is encircled by the Japanese and there is an unconfirmed report that it has fallen, while the Associated Press indicates that the Chinese still hold it and are repelling attacks. A Reuter message from Tokyo states that the Domei Agency claimed last night that Japanese troops had yesterday completed the occupation of Lanchi.

The Reuter report is:—Kinhwa was encircled by the Japanese, but there was no confirmation of Japanese reports that the city had fallen. The latest Chinese information reaching Chingking was dated late on Wednesday night. Yesterday at dawn 10,000 Japanese launched a simultaneous assault on the city from the north, east and south, the communiqué reports. By nighfall the Japanese attacks slowed down; then the Chinese counter-attacked.

Severe fighting was also in progress north-east and east of Lanchi, north-west of Kinhwa. A Japanese column crossing the Lan River continued to advance westward striking towards the highway—apparently trying to effect a junction with another column. A Japanese column from Kienteh crossed the Sinan River and pushed southward along the highway in the direction of Lungyu. They were engaged by the Chinese to the north of Shouchang.

NEW PERMITS ORDER

LABOUR LEADER'S VIEWS

Commenting on the new Order restricting permits for employment abroad, Mr. Luke Duffy, Secretary of the Irish Labour Party, said to an Irish Times representative last night that young men and women were leaving this country for the last two years, and, having regard to the necessities of the country in the matter of food and fuel, it was his view that emigration should have been altogether stopped as long ago as May, 1940. It was, however, idle to stop emigration so long as no effective steps were taken to provide work at home for intending emigrants.

"To produce half the fuel required for 1942-43 season," added Mr. Duffy, "would require the services of 60,000 men constantly employed in the bogs from now till the end of the turf-producing season. We have not got that number available, and we cannot, therefore, by the ordinary methods, hope to provide even one half of the fuel which we will require in the next fuel year. Even the men who are available for turf production are allowed to remain idle because the Government refuses to pay them a reasonable wage. The wages now offered in most counties are lower than were paid turf workers a year ago by county surveyors, and are in many cases 33½ per cent lower than the rates paid by private owners of turbary."

200,000 Russians in "Bulge" Battle

STILL employing offensive tactics in his stern battle on the Red Army's Donetz flank, south of Kharkov, Marshal Timoshenko, in a new stroke north-east of the city, is reported to have breached the German lines covering one of Marshal von Bock's vital rail lines. This is the Kharkov-Byelgorod Railway, towards which the Soviet Commander threw fresh troops in order to relieve the pressure in the South.

Latest Moscow reports reaching Stockholm say that the Russians fought their way forward to the railway—which, for the most of its length, runs about 30 miles west of the Donetz River—yesterday.

In the battle in the big Lozovaya "bulge" Stockholm reports say that the Russians have put twelve divisions—approximately 200,000 men—against General von Scwedler's "wedge," whose so far favourable communication system may be affected by the new Russian move in the North.

Kharkov Front Battles

The Germans yesterday issued a claim that the battle south of Kharkov had resulted in a "final victory of German and Allied arms," but a few hours afterwards the High Command admitted that groups of Red Army men up to several thousand were still attempting to break the encirclement, with other Soviet forces battering at the ring from the outside.

On the main Kharkov front General Hoth is throwing in an immense amount of armoured material, in an effort to neutralise Timoshenko's gains.

Soviet troops continue to consolidate their positions on the Kharkov front, says Red Star. At some points, it says, they are carrying out local attacks. The Germans are trying tactics of concentrating artillery and mortar fire on the flanks of various Soviet units. The German 101st Infantry Division on Izyum-Barvenkovo front failed in all attempts to cross to the left bank of a "certain river" about 12 miles south of an inhabited place, suffering very heavy casualties. The division, belonging to von Schwedler's group, had been specially allocated this task.

The Pravda correspondent says that Soviet troops, by raiding the right bank, are preventing the Germans from establishing firm positions. The Germans, he says, lost a thousand dead in one attempt to cross, which ended in a bayonet struggle on the right bank.

OFFENSIVE BLOCKED

Henry P. Cassidy, Associated Press Staff Correspondent, telegraphing from Moscow yesterday said that the Germans, their offensive in the Izyum-Barvenkovo area blocked, were reported yesterday to be trying to dig in on a new defence line, but they are undergoing heavy pressure from the Red Army, which is counter-attacking. Front line despatches said that the Russians were forcing the Germans to retreat after crossing to the right bank of "a river" where the German drive had been halted. The Red Army simultaneously continued to move forward in the direction of Kharkov from freshly fortified lines. The initiative on both the major Ukrainian fronts was now firmly in the hands of the Russians.

Moscow Radio also announced last night that, after consolidating captured positions at Kharkov and beating off counter-attacks, the Red Army resumed its advance in several sectors.

Soviet forces were said to have firmly consolidated themselves in their newly-captured positions.—(Reuter.)

THREE-DAY BATTLE

Fighting has flared up again on the Briansk front, south-west of Moscow, and Moscow Radio said that the Germans have been dive-bombing Soviet positions. Five Heinkel 113's were shot down by infantry and several strong German attacks were beaten off.

Moscow Radio also referred to a fierce three-day battle around Lake Ilmen, 100 miles south of Leningrad. In the last two days one Soviet unit has repulsed seven German attacks. The Germans lost 1,000 killed and two of their Junkers 52 transport 'planes were shot down.

Liberation of seven populated places on the north-west front was also reported by Moscow radio heard in London last night. Fighting in forests and marshland exhausted the Germans, who lost 700 dead and wounded, as well as a large quantity of war material.

MIDNIGHT REPORT

MOSCOW, Thursday.

The Soviet midnight communiqué states:—"Enemy tanks and infantry made fierce attacks in the Izyum-Barvenkovo direction, which were repelled. On other sectors of the front nothing of importance took place.

"On May 27, twenty-eight German 'planes were destroyed. We lost eighteen 'planes."

MEXICO ASKED TO DECLARE WAR

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

MEXICO CITY, Thursday.—President Camacho to-day asked the Mexican Congress to declare the "existence of a state of war" between Mexico and the Axis Powers, in a special message addressed to both Houses of Parliament, meeting together in special session.

The President said that the move was necessary to enable Mexico to defend her rights and her independence. The war should be conducted in "the most complete offensive spirit."

He referred to the torpedoing of the Mexican tanker Potrero de Llano, which was sunk, although her markings clearly showed her neutral status. After this incident, he said, the Mexican Government addressed a Note to the Axis Powers, demanding reparations. The Note was rejected by the German Government. A few days later the Mexican freighter Fara de Oro was also sunk off the American coast.

"Mexico," he added "has always protested against the violation of neutral countries, and the country has invariably shown its good-will to belligerents.

"I am asking Congress to declare that, as from May 22, a state of war exists between Mexico, on the one hand, and Germany, Japan and Italy, on the other hand."

"The declaration of war," he went on, "has as its aim the defence of the rights and independence of the Mexican Republic—unite to conduct it in the most completely offensive spirit. Everyone must be determined to work for the national defence, and for collaboration with the United Nations in the war against the Axis.

"Mexico will wage this war with all the means at her disposal."

A later message from Mexico City said: The Mexican Congress has not yet voted its approval of the Cabinet's war decision.—(Reuter.)

UNITED CHURCHES MOVE

BIGGEST SINCE REFORMATION

The Bishop of London (Dr. Fisher), broadcasting last night, announced that the Anglican and Free Churches and the Roman Catholic Church had agreed upon "such a measure of joint action as has not happened in this country since the Reformation."

These "three main streams of Christian life" had agreed to set up a joint standing committee of "religion and life"—the joint enterprise of Anglicans and Free Churchmen, and "the Sword of the Spirit," the Roman Catholic organisation. This joint committee was not itself an organisation. "Its business," explained the bishop, "will be to assist and stimulate the co-operation already begun in many different localities, to remove possible causes of friction and misunderstanding, and, in particular, to co-ordinate the work of the Anglican and Free Church "Religion and Life" movement and the Roman Catholic "Sword of the Spirit."

The Joint Standing Committee, of which Dr. Fisher is chairman, will act to the utmost possible extent, to secure effective influence of the Christian heritage upon social, economic, civic and international problems. It agrees that there is a large area of common ground "on which, without raising ultimate questions of Church order and doctrine which divide us, full co-operation is possible, and is already taking place." Further, that among the essential freedoms must be freedom for Christian bodies everywhere to worship according to consciences, to preach, teach and persuade in the spirit of Christian charity, and to bring up children in the faith of their parents.

These points were embodied in a statement issued yesterday. "It is not an official pronouncement of any of the Churches concerned, but it, and the joint standing committee which produced it, have the good-will of the Commission of the Anglican and Free Churches, and of the Roman Catholic Church, and they have to-day been most warmly commended in person by the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is Chairman of the Commission, and by Cardinal Hinsley, who is President of the Sword of the Spirit. Such a measure of joint action has not happened in this country since the Reformation."

CONVOY BOMBED IN FAR NORTH

BIG GERMAN CLAIMS

BERLIN, Thursday. — A special announcement by the German High Command to-night states that the Luftwaffe yesterday sank 11 ships, totalling 72,000 tons, belonging to a convoy, in far northern waters. Attacks had been made on the convoy since Monday.

According to the announcement, the convoy was picked out by reconnaissance aircraft and had been the target of "devastating" blows by air formations commanded by Col.-Gen. Stumpf. 'Planes have been operating in conjunction with naval forces. By Monday evening the Luftwaffe, flying hundreds of miles, had sunk a merchant ship of 8,000 tons and damaged five other ships by direct hits, it is said. A merchant ship of 8,000 tons was destroyed the next day, and three other heavily-laden freighters were fired.

On Wednesday, the announcement goes on, "a particularly heavy blow" was inflicted on the convoy, constantly pursued by U-boats, despite heavy defence put up by escort forces. Bombers sank 11 ships, totalling 72,000 tons, and badly hit two other ships and a destroyer. Sixteen vessels were also damaged by bombs. "Out of this convoy, destined for the Soviet Union, 13 ships, totalling some 88,000 tons, have been sunk by the Luftwaffe. The remainder of the convoy is attempting to escape to safety in northern waters still free from ice. The pursuit is being continued."—(Reuter.)

Another German communiqué of yesterday's date claims that off the south coast of Great Britain light aircraft sank a patrol boat, and that German submarines had sunk, off the east coast of North America, in the Caribbean Sea, and off the Mississippi, eight ships, aggregating 26,500 tons, and severely damaged four others.

U.S. SUBMARINE'S TOLL

WASHINGTON, Thursday. — U.S. submarines in the Far East have damaged a heavy Japanese cruiser, sunk a large auxiliary vessel and a medium-sized cargo ship, and severely damaged, and probably sunk, a second merchantman.

Reporting these successes, the Navy Department said that two of these actions had not been announced in any previous communiqué, and were not related to the Coral Sea fight early this month. To-day's list of ships brings to 69 the total number of Japanese ships of all kinds dealt with by U.S. submarines since the attack on Pearl Harbour. Of these, 44 have been sunk, 13 probably sunk, and 12 damaged.—(Reuter.)

U-BOAT SUNK

ST. LUCIA (British West Indies), Thursday.—The U.S. destroyer Blakeley reached port last night, after coming safely through an attack by "Wolf-Pack" submarines, which precipitated a naval battle. The destroyer was torpedoed and damaged on May 26, and attacked a second time on May 27, while making for St. Lucia from Martinique. The second attack signalled the start of a naval battle, in which U.S. 'planes sank at least one U-boat. Other results of the battle were not determined.—(Associated Press.)

RECIFE (Brazil), Thursday.—The Argentine vessel Rio Iguazu arrived at Recife to-day with 52 survivors of a British vessel torpedoed on May 17 450 miles off Martinique. Axis radios had claimed that the survivors were from an American battleship.—(A.P.)

WASHINGTON, Thursday.—A medium-sized U.S. merchantman has been torpedoed in the Caribbean Sea, and a medium-sized Panamanian merchantman has been torpedoed off the Atlantic coast, the U.S. Navy Department announced to-night.—(Reuter.)

MINES ON WEST COAST

"Masters and others in charge of vessels are warned that numerous floating mines have been observed at points along the West coast of Ireland," according to an official notification yesterday.

GREEN CROSS SOCIETY

DUBLIN APPEAL FOR FUNDS

There were 400 men behind prison bars in Northern Ireland, of whom 308 were internees, and even jail basements were in use, with two men in each cell, said Mr. Eamonn Donnelly, hon. secretary, at a meeting of the Green Cross Society in Jury's Hotel, Dublin, last night. The Society, Mr. Donnelly said, was non-political and had no affiliation with any other organisation, but had been established solely to help the dependents of political prisoners and internees.

It was decided to set up a committee in Dublin to collect subscriptions.

Mr. Denis McCullagh, who presided, said that there had been an ungenerous response from the twenty-six counties, only £229 having been subscribed.

Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C., M.P., said that it would be a serious matter for the North if the fund failed.

Senator T. J. McLaughlin, Armagh, said that they in the North would remain there to fight present conditions. They all looked forward to the day when the country would be united again.

Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., said that conditions in Northern Ireland to-day were similar to those in Dublin after 1916. The problem was a national one.

General Eoin O'Duffy also spoke.

LOYALTY TO CHURCHILL

LABOUR UNANIMOUS

The Labour Party Conference in London ended last night on a note of unity by sending a message of loyalty to the Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill.

"We assure Winston Churchill," said Mr. W. H. Green, the Chairman, "that we stand behind him as a movement, to a man and to a woman in his determination to prosecute this war to our determined end. He has our profound sympathy in the almost overwhelming burden he is bearing at present, and if he calls us as a people to further sacrifice, with the end of winning this war, we will follow. Never has a Prime Minister had a more loyal party to follow him in this effort than has Winston Churchill in the Labour Party."

A resolution instructing the Executive to remove the ban on members co-operating with members of the Communist Party on specific issues was rejected by 189,900 votes to 132,000.

A resolution asking for the lifting of the ban on the Daily Worker was carried by 1,244,000 votes to 1,251,000.

This defeat of the Executive was greeted with loud cheers.

Occupiers of domestic and other controlled premises in Great Britain may acquire up to one ton of fuel during June, of which not more than half a ton may be house coal and the remainder coke, anthracite, etc.

RETIRED G.S.R. CHIEF

MR. W. H. MORTON HONOURED

Making the presentation, Mr. Gordon Bradley, Law Agent to the Company, recalled that Mr. Morton had entered the old Midland Great Western Railway Company just forty-two years ago. On the amalgamation of the railways in 1924 he became deputy mechanical engineer, and in 1929 became chief mechanical engineer. From 1932 until his retirement he had been general manager of the company. He was a member of the Departmental Committee set up by the Government in 1925 to report on the system and law of Workmen's Compensation, was a director of Aer Lingus, Teoranta, until 1941, and several times acted as advocate for the Associated Irish Railway Companies before the Irish Railway Wages Board. He is a Vice-President of Associated British and Irish Railways, Inc., New York, as a representative of the Irish railways.

Mr. Bradley expressed the regret felt by the chief officers of the company at Mr. Morton's retirement, but they rejoiced that by his appointment to act for the company in a consultative capacity he had not completely severed his connection with the company. They wished him many years of health and happiness to enjoy his well-merited retirement.

Mr. E. C. Bredin, deputy general manager, referred to Mr. Morton's success in various engineering appointments he had held.

Mr. Morton, acknowledging the presentation, said he would always treasure the portrait as a lasting memento of the friendship and loyal assistance he had received from every one of the company's officers.

FIGHT BEHIND BRITISH FRONT LINE

ARMOURED FORCES SWING TOWARDS TOBRUK

LONDON, Thursday.—The main armoured clash in the new battle of the Western desert now is taking place behind the Allied front lines.

The battleground lies over the rolling sand-dunes north-east of Bir Hacheim, the water-hole, 40 miles from the coast, and El Adem, about 15 miles south of Tobruk.

This was indicated by official sources quoted in a Cairo despatch to-night. It was added that "there is no cause for dissatisfaction." The battle is developing on the lines generally anticipated.

Despite the battle's north-easterly swing towards Tobruk, the Allied front line positions, which, from Gazala on the coast, bend eastward towards Bir Macheim, and thence thrust south-west over something like 250 miles of desert, remain intact.—(Press Association and Reuter.)

GERMAN THRUST REPELLED

A communiqué from the Allied 8th Army Headquarters earlier reported that the Germans' fierce initial armoured thrust at Bir Hacheim had been thrown back with losses. Axis columns attacking the British line have been split into two columns, both of which were immediately engaged in heavy fighting to the north-east. Fighting spread over a wide area and continued throughout the day with undiminished intensity. On the coast the Germans approached the Allied position south of Gazala, north-west of Bir Hacheim, but suffered more casualties and failed to break the British lines. As tanks and armoured cars clashed British aircraft lent vigorous support to the ground forces, with non-stop attacks on Axis transport, and engaged in air battles, with Luftwaffe units attempting to strafe the British troops.

Throughout Wednesday fighters and bombers were in action against the Axis mechanised forces in the Bir Hacheim and El Adem areas. Nine Axis 'planes were shot down and others severely damaged. Large numbers of transports were destroyed.

On Wednesday night the Axis aerodrome at Tmimi, along the coast to the north-west of Gazala, was heavily bombed.

Authoritative circles in London pointed out that General Rommel's offensive has created a heavy threat against the Allies' southern flank, but of his possible objective it is difficult at this early stage to say much. Doubtless, if he wishes to push on to Sollum, on the Egyptian frontier, General Rommel will not be anxious to leave Tobruk as a thorn in the side of his communications.

The first and real objective on both sides is to destroy the other's armour. Until that is done there is no point in concentrating on Benghazi at one end of this vast operational field and on Sollum or Matruh at the other.—(Press Association.)

FRONT LINE LAY-OUT

CAIRO, Thursday.—Ralph Walling, Reuter's Special Correspondent, says: I learn that British air losses have been small. The Germans, so far, have not given their ground forces very much air support, though Stukas were active on the first day.

If the location and initial clash of the big armoured struggle is causing General Ritchie no disquiet, it is reasonable to assume that General Nehring struck where he was expected to strike. There were only two ways eastwards for the Afrikakorps—one was through a great minefield, protecting the Allies' forward position frontally, and the other was round it. The British armoured forces were probably waiting for the spearhead of the Axis offensive to appear just where it did.

It is necessary to understand the "lay-out" of the Allied front line positions, if the present battle is to be clearly understood. They are based on a system of localities having an all-round defence. Between them it is possible for tank columns to penetrate. Between Gazala and Tobruk hilly and rocky ground creates a strong defensive position, now fortified with a mass of dug-in positions and strong points, having an all-round field of fire.

A great deal has been done to speed-up the system of tank recovery and repair since the British offensive last year.—(Reuter.)

"Through yesterday (27th May) our fighter and bomber aircraft were in action against enemy mechanised forces in the Bir Hachim and El Adem areas," said Thursday's Royal Air Force Middle East communiqué.

R.A.F. CLAIMS

Some hours before the Axis attack began in Libya, Royal Air Force fighters, operating from their forward bases, were reconnoitring the Germans' final preparations and strafing his columns and motor transport concentrations, states the Air Ministry News Service. When the Axis attack was launched "fighters escorted Boston bombers on attacks on transport. Earlier patrols and strafing were carried out, mainly by American-built Kittyhawks. They kept up an all-day offensive—a continuous attack on the columns of supply vehicles that followed the advancing Axis armoured cars and tanks along the southern flank of the Allied lines. These Kittyhawk pilots alone destroyed or seriously damaged more than sixty-five vehicles. Fighters also escorted Boston bombers on a raid in which a concentration of some seven hundred Axis motor transport vehicles was attacked. Great havoc was caused. All the bombs fell plumb on the target, and scores of vehicles were destroyed. Four large fires were left burning among the concentration. All the Bostons returned. Royal Air Force losses throughout Wednesday—the first day of the advance—totalled five, some of the pilots of which may yet turn up."

GERMAN COMMENT

Neither Rome nor Berlin has so far referred to the Libyan land battle, says Reuter. The latest statement by the German News Agency says that only yesterday German dive bombers attacked British concentrations of vehicles in Western Marmarica and desert positions. "A number of motor lorries were set ablaze by direct hits, and an anti-aircraft battery was silenced. Considerable damage was done to tent encampments. On the same day German light bomber aircraft made dive attacks on British desert air bases, damaging grounded aircraft."—(Reuter.)

TEA TO BE 4/- PER LB.

An Order made by the Minister for Supplies fixes the maximum retail price of tea at 4s. per pound from the 1st of June. The maximum wholesale price is fixed by the same Order at 3s. 4d. per pound delivered to the retailer. The new retail price represents an increase of 8d. per pound on the present price. The increases are due to higher cost of imported tea. Certain packet teas will be available at prices lower than the fixed maximum retail price. Prices in excess of the fixed prices should not be paid.

TO HELP THE POOR

Senator Sean Campbell, at the opening of the sale of work organised by the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, at 53 Mountjoy Square, Dublin, yesterday, said that he saw no reason why the Government should not consider the giving of family allowances to city people, as well as to county people, as was proposed.

The Rev. S. G. Griffin, who presided, described the poverty-stricken areas in the vicinity, and spoke of the Society as a ray of light in the darkness of these areas. "Public support," he said, "is extremely necessary if the work of this Society is to be carried on."

Alderman A. Byrne, T.D., declaring the sale open, said that if the Government wanted advice on giving family allowances it could get no better advice than from this Society.

Bridging the Gap

The people of Ireland have become accustomed to gloomy speeches from the Minister for Supplies. That fact is not to be regretted. The circumstances have been gloomy, and it is infinitely preferable that Mr. Lemass—or, indeed, any other Minister—should present the worse side of the picture rather than raise false hopes. Our doctrine always has been that the Irish people can endure adversity, and are willing to endure it. What they hate is deceit. They may be persuaded to believe that everything is for the best in the best of all possible States in the best of all possible worlds, but sooner or later their innate common-sense belies the belief, and then their moral is liable to crack: they tend to turn against the men who have given them false confidence. It is far better that they should know the worst, and that the conviction should be driven home to them. Some few months ago Mr. Lemass announced that the existing supply of wheat was sufficient to maintain the bread supply, at the prevailing rate of consumption, until approximately the end of June. The prophecy formed part of his most melancholy speech, and we have no doubt that it exercised a salutary effect upon consumption. Since then certain things have happened: in particular, a useful quantity of wheat has been imported, contrary to all expectations, and the result is that the country need not go without bread until roughly a month later—to wit, the end of July. This is the burden of Mr. Lemass's most cheerful and consolatory pronouncement for many months past. He has done right to make it, as he did right to make his lugubrious statements on previous occasions. Democracy—in particular, Irish democracy—demands that the people shall know the truth. If they do not know the truth, they are liable either to magnify or to minimise such rumours as reach their ears; and either course is equally dangerous to the State's moral and security. Patriotic citizens have accustomed themselves, as a result of the Minister's previous warnings, to reduce their consumption of bread. They will not increase it as a result of his reckoning—we cannot venture to speak of his assurance—that there is sufficient wheat to keep the country going for a further month. They will realise not that a month has been granted for indulgence, but that a further month has been interposed before the day of hunger, and, possibly, of starvation; and they will not eat an additional slice of bread in the day as a consequence of the Minister's cheerful words.

It is only during the present month that the people of the twenty-six counties—in especial, of Dublin—have begun to feel the pinch of war conditions. The phrase, perhaps, ought to be qualified. There were many citizens of Dublin who knew throughout the winter what it meant to go without fuel for the cooking of proper meals; there have been many who have learned recently the discomfort of "queuing" for bread—an experience which is not less real because Ministers deny the necessity for it; but it is only since the intensive rationing of gas and electricity began that the comparatively well-to-do have been forced to realise that "there is a war on." The lesson may prove to be a useful one. Neither rich nor poor—the rich, in fact, even less conveniently than the poor—can evade the new fuel regulations; and the knowledge has brought home the realisation that this country's back is against the wall. For years past, in spite of Fianna Fail's doctrine of self-sufficiency, we have been dependent not only for luxuries, but for dozens of unrecognised necessities, upon imported supplies. These supplies have been cut off, and the country is confronted now with the necessity to make do with its own native resources, which, as it happens, are sadly insufficient for the purpose. Our need, in the circumstances, is twofold. More must be saved, and more must be produced; and of these tasks, the former is the easier. We Irish have a reputation for wastefulness. It is a reputation that must be lived down. There are a hundred simple means by which food can be saved and fuel can be saved. They are not known to the generality of housewives, but they can be taught—by the Radio, by the Press, by all the resources of propaganda that a quick-witted Government, if it wishes, can devise. It is not so easy to increase the national production. Much has been done in this direction, but much remains to be done. A substantial crop of wheat, of other cereals, of root crops, has been grown; but it is nothing to the crop that could be grown if the nation really were thrown back upon its own resources—if the nation genuinely realised that it was face to face with its own extinction. We have praised Mr. Lemass's straightforwardness, as preferable to false optimism; but something more dynamic than straightforwardness is needed if Ireland is to surmount the coming crisis. The need is for clarity of vision, persuasion, leadership.

A Hopeful Sign

According to a statement broadcast last evening by Dr. Fisher, the Bishop of London, an event of prime importance in the religious life of the British people has taken place during the last few days. So far back as December, 1940, a letter appeared in The Times signed jointly by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, Cardinal Hinsley, and the Moderator of the Free Church Council, setting forth a series of points of common interest to the three main streams of Christian life in Great Britain, and suggesting that there ought to be a certain measure of co-operation between the leaders of the principal Churches. It seems now that substantial progress has been made towards this ideal. Dr. Fisher declared last night that the Church leaders had achieved "such a measure of joint action as has not happened in this country since the Reformation"; and, while it is too soon to estimate the full significance of the move, there is no doubt that, so far as it goes, it is "a notable thing." The ultimate object of the new movement is to co-ordinate the efforts of the Protestant and Roman Catholic Churches in Great Britain, not alone in purely religious matters, but also in matters of social and economic importance. To this end a joint standing committee has been established consisting of representatives, on the one hand, of "Religion and Life," a joint Anglican and Free Church organisation, and, on the other, of "The Sword of the Spirit," which is entirely Roman Catholic, and of which Cardinal Hinsley is the President. What precisely will be the policy of this joint committee has not been made clear; but the mere fact that it exists is a welcome portent. Hitherto, in Great Britain—as in Ireland—there has been far too little co-operation between the Christian Churches. The three principal branches of the Christian faith—the Anglicans, the Roman Catholics, and the Free Churchmen—have been working more or less in water-tight compartments, and, although there has been a certain measure of common effort between the Anglicans and the Free Churchmen, there has been little, if any, between the Protestants and the Roman Catholics. Dr. Fisher, and the other sponsors of the new movement, realise clearly that any attempt to force the pace would be fatal. The war has created a condition of affairs in Great Britain, and, indeed, throughout the world, which calls for united action by all the Christian Churches. The world crisis is far too grave for doctrinal differences, and there was never a greater need for the practical interpretation of the principles that were enunciated in the Sermon on the Mount. It is most unlikely that the joint committee in London will concern itself directly with those problems that have kept the Christian Churches apart since the Reformation. Freedom of religious belief is an essential condition of civilised life, and is one of the foundations on which the British Commonwealth of Nations has been built. On the other hand, there is a growing need, not only in Great Britain, but throughout the world, for a consolidation of Christian effort. The entire structure of Christianity is in danger at the moment. Nothing but the combined efforts of Christ's followers will save it; and the decision of the Churches in England to make common cause in its defence ought to be a source of joy to all believers.

COLLECTION OF WASTE PAPER

"A NATIONAL DUTY"

The Parish Councils had nothing but the friendliest feelings towards Muintir na Tire, said Mr. F. M. Summerfield, chairman, at yesterday's conference of Parish Councils of Dublin city and county.

Referring to a recent editorial in the Irish Times, entitled "Rural Rivalries," he said that he had been surprised at such a journal making an attack of the kind without finding out if there was any basis for it. The language of the irresponsible article was extraordinary.

Since it had appeared, he added, a letter was received from Fr. J. Hayes, president of Muintir na Tire, which effectively disposed of any idea of antipathy existing between his organisation and the Parish Councils. A letter sent to the Irish Times on April 23rd had been neither published nor acknowledged.

During a discussion on waste paper collection, it was stated that an offer had been received from a commercial firm to take waste paper collected by Parish Councils. The Councils would get paid, and could devote the funds to social services.

It was decided that the firms interested should be invited to let the Councils know what facilities they offered.

Mr. Summerfield said that the collection of waste paper was a national duty, and that it was the duty of Parish Councils to help it on.

Mr. P. L. McEvoy said that if the Irish mills got sufficient waste paper they could produce enough paper to keep the daily newspapers at least at their present size, but the mills were not getting the waste. Intensive collection had not been undertaken on a systematic scale in this country, in which thousands were depending for their livelihood on the publishing and printing trades.

Discussing the problem of fuel, Mr. Denis Kennedy, Dundrum, said that after after all they had been told about the provision of turf, Mr. Hugo Flinn now informed them that the men who were to provide the turf had left the country. The people were now asking why these men had been let go, especially when every surveyor and engineer who had worked on turf last year had a bog-road problem to face.

Mr. Summerfield said that, no matter how much turf was cut, it was not being brought to Dublin, and there was a lot already cut which should be in Dublin now. It would be a national tragedy if, after cutting and saving the turf, it was left to rot on the banks. Military lorries, he added, could be utilised to bring it to the city instead of going empty.

Mr. R. Davys, Blanchardstown, said that in his district people were cooking on brambles and twigs. They had no fires of any kind, neither had they electricity nor gas. They could not afford to pay £3 a ton for fuel, and there were no huxters' shops available. Blanchardstown had had a timber scheme, but it was now finished. It was possible to get turf delivered there at £2 a ton, but they could not get a permit.

It was decided that a letter should be sent to the Government department concerned, asking if, in view of the fact that turf was being produced nearer to the city this year, it could not be sold cheaper.

THOMAS CARR EXHIBITION

No trace of the influence of the "Euston Road" group of young English painters (who were enjoying a spell of popularity in London when war broke out) has hitherto been discernible in Dublin, but Mr. Thomas Carr, a young Belfast artist, whose exhibition at the Contemporary Picture Galleries was opened yesterday by Mr. R. Richmond Figgis, has, quite clearly, mastered the "Euston Road" idiom and technique.

Like his English contemporaries, Mr. Carr derives from modern French painting, but his France is the France of Manet, Fantin Latour and Corot, the France of upper middle-class good taste and æstheticism, rather than the France of Paul Cézanne, which is the France of uncompromising truth and art. His effects, however, are, as far as they go, charming. If his skies lack luminosity one hardly notices it, for he has a delightful colour sense, most notable, perhaps, in the large study, "Mother and Child" (which, in addition to good colour, has pleasing sentiment), and the small "Lough Island, Ravey," is a little poem of subdued tonal harmonies. "Girl Reading" has a sensitively stated intimacy of mood, and "Liffey at Night" makes it clear that our own painters have not, by any means, exhausted the possibilities of Dublin in the matter of visual loveliness.

HOSPITAL BEDS WANTED

The scarcity of hospital beds was commented on by Mr. W. B. Conyngham when presiding at the annual meeting of Drumcondra Hospital, Dublin, yesterday evening.

Moving the adoption of the report, he mentioned that while speaking at a meeting of another hospital he had put the blame for the scarcity of beds on the Hospitals' Commission, and had been called to task for having done so. Since then he had, he said, found that the supplying of beds was not part of the work of the Hospitals' Commission, and he offered the Commission his apology and withdrew what he had said. At the same time, he still contended that there were not enough beds to meet the needs of the people. Although this country was neutral, it could not escape the consequences of the war. There were forebodings both of famine and disease, and, if the worst should happen here, they would find hospital accommodation not only in Dublin, but throughout the country, absolutely inadequate.

Dublin hospitals had, he stated, an international reputation. They had some magnificent buildings provided by hospital sweepstakes, but buildings without a soul; and he was rather thankful that a hospital such as Drumcondra Hospital could get on better in its work outside chance and luck.

The motion was seconded by Canon E. H. F. Campbell and passed.

The report of the committee, which was read by Mr. A. Strain, stated that the work of the hospital had been well maintained during the year and that, notwithstanding increasing difficulties, expenses had been fully met. The committee had received from Mr. W. F. Murdock £500 in memory of his wife, and a scheme had been adopted by which two beds were allotted for the use of suitable patients from Tullow, nominated by a local committee.

Dr. M. A. McKeever presented the report of the Medical Board, which showed that 432 cases had been treated in the wards during the year. The work of the extern dispensaries had been exceptionally heavy, and 5,127 patients had been advised and treated.

The financial report was submitted by Mr. J. E. Robinson.

On the motion of Mr. James Beggs, seconded by Dr. McKeever, the retiring members of the committee—Canon Campbell, Rev. P. J. Lyons, C.C., and Messrs. J. E. Robinson, J. J. Simington and A. Strain—were re-elected.

NORTH STRAND BOMBING

The North City A.R.P. services have arranged to commemorate the anniversary of the death of the victims of the North Strand road bombing incident by holding a procession on Sunday next. Other voluntary organisations have signified their intention to take part in the parade, which is expected to number 5,000. Masses for the repose of the souls of those who lost their lives in the bombing will be celebrated in the Churches of St. Agatha, North William street, at 10.30, and St. Lawrence O'Toole's, Seville place, at 11 o'clock, after which the processionists, accompanied by bands, will form up in four-deep formation at allotted places, and march off by defined course to the Central Model Schools, Marlborough street, where Mr. S. Moylan, T.D., Parliamentary Secretary, will take the salute. Those intending to take part in the procession should be in their places at 11.30 a.m.

L.D.F. AT THE ROYAL

The first of the summer series of entertainments arranged for the Defence Services took place last night at the Theatre Royal, Dublin. Members of the 43rd Batt. L.D.F. (Comdt. J. J. Harpur) and of the Rathfarnham District L.D.F. (District Leader A. E. McGuire) paraded at St. Stephen's Green, and, two thousand strong, headed by the No. 1 Army Band, marched through the city to the theatre. Here they were treated to an enjoyable programme of variety turns and films. During the evening a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Messrs. Egan and Company, 43 Henry street; T. Fitzpatrick, 2 G.P.O. Buildings; P. P. Galligan, 1 G.P.O. Buildings; Menzies and Co., 49 Henry street; Sloweys, 48 Henry street; and Johnston and Co., 49 Ranelagh, who, with the management of the theatre, had sponsored the programme.

"LOVE AND LAND"

Lynn Doyle's comedy, "Love and Land," was played by the Auriga Production before a large audience in the Carmel Hall, Dublin, last night. The play is in the author's best style, with Peter O'Hare worriedly avoiding the designs of the local lassies, who are after his hand, his money and his land. The growing desperation and the amusing situations into which he is led are a source of mounting comic suspense, that was well built up by the players. Among the cast were Brian Cahill, Patrick Browne, Liam Browne, Colman Mangan, Jack Sheil, Noel Buggy, Sylvia Bourke, Una Carrig and Mairin Boyle.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON.
THURSDAY NIGHT.

MR. SEUMAS BRENDAN MORGAN, who, with Mr. Frank Pakenham, was a dissentient at an Irish meeting in London to-day, at which Mr. Maurice Healy, General Sir Hubert Gough, and Mr. Shaun P. O'Connor expounded policy, is leader of the Labour Party in Hampstead, and at 37 is probably the youngest J.P. in London. A company director, he is son of the late Mr. Patrick Morgan, of South Richmond street, Dublin. Mr. Morgan has been a member of the Labour Party since he came to London twelve years ago. A member of the Hampstead Council's Emergency Committee, he is one of the most progressive public representatives in the borough, and puts in much time on Council work. Mrs. Morgan is a daughter of the late Mr. Batt O'Connor, T.D., and they have three children.

Christian Co-operation

Dr. G. F. Fisher, the Bishop of London, at a meeting of Church leaders to-day, in the presence of Cardinal Hinsley and Dr. Temple, the Archbishop of Canterbury, read a joint statement on Christian co-operation issued in the name of "Religion and Life" for Anglicans, the Church of Scotland and the Free Churches, and "Sword of the Spirit" for Catholics. The five points of the statement embody agreement on the grave need for co-operation in the drift away from all Christianity; that the field of co-operation in the social and international fields does not affect ultimate questions of Church order and doctrine; that the essential freedoms of organised Christianity must be defended, as well as recognised and guaranteed by the State. The need to unite informed and convinced Christians on broad lines of social and international policy is Point No. 4, and the final agreed point is the formation of a joint committee to give advice, direction and encouragement to the spontaneously organised movements of Christian co-operation throughout Britain.

Potatoes for Cattle

The necessity under war-time conditions of reserving grain for human consumption has led to the possibility of substituting surplus potatoes for the grain normally used in winter rations for cattle. In an experiment, the results of which were announced to-day, raw potatoes sliced and dried in a sugar beet factory were used as a substitute for cereals and cereal products—oats, maize and bran—in the dairy ration. Introduced gradually, it was found that dried potato slices could replace the whole of the starchy concentrates, so that ultimately cows getting only cake and potatoes milked and maintained their health as well as those receiving the normal ration of cakes and cereals. While the potatoes were being fed at the highest level the tests gave no indication of any difference in flavour.

Famous Hall

The Liverpool Corporation are taking the important step of taking over the famous Philharmonic Hall on July 1st. The civic buildings will then be enriched by the addition of an admirable concert hall, which is also a fine and dignified building from the architectural viewpoint. Municipal ownership will still leave full scope for the Philharmonic Society's enterprise and initiative, but the Corporation will have a large say in the fixing of prices, and, through their Education Director, in the arrangement of six concerts a year. The society are to receive £35,000 at once, and £4,000 a quarter. The quarterly payments will be held on trust and applied for the maintenance of the orchestra of 45, the promotion of musical education in the area, and the provision of from sixteen to twenty-four high-class concerts each year, another sixteen at popular prices, and six under the ægis of the Director of Education.

Symbolic Railings

Workmen were to-day removing the railings which for more than ninety years have stood around Kennington Park, South London, as a direct challenge to free speech. The reason is that Kennington Park is really common land, and should not be enclosed. A big Chartist meeting held on the common in 1850 led the authorities to prevent any further meeting of this kind being held within walking distance of the House of Commons. A special Act was accordingly passed which gave powers for railing the common. The Prince Consort contributed the first £500 and the rest was subscribed by the people of London. Every night since then the park has been closed at the ordinary shutting hours, but a right-of-way through has been maintained at night.

Fewer Cosmetics

Reports to-day were that the range of cosmetics is to be further limited, and that prices will be strictly controlled. Discussions of a scheme on "utility lines" are being completed by business interests and the Board of Trade, and an announcement is expected next week. It is likely that powders and lipsticks will be "standardised" and limited to one size and three or four different shades. Even at present one firm is still supplying lipsticks in fifteen different shades and three sizes. As an example of how prices have risen, due to the "black market" and the great demand from war workers, the case is quoted of one cold cream which used to sell at 3d. a tin and is now 2s. 8d.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Men in Football

Some Dublin football legislators must devote nearly all their spare time to the game. A colleague tells me that there is evidence of this in the annual report to be presented at Saturday night's meeting of the Football Association of Ireland.

Mr. "Larry" Sheridan, one of the old stalwarts of the game who was prominent in the government of football even before the "split" with the Irish Football Association, attended no fewer than 62 council and committee meetings in the season just closing. Mr. M. J. Kenny, who runs the financial side of the F.A.I. with marked ability, attended 60 meetings, and Mr. Myles Murphy, who is regarded as one of the clearest thinkers on the Council, attended 56.

When the number of hours spent watching "soccer" games, and the nights that are spent in semi-official discussions, are added to the total of meetings attended, it will be realised that men like those named, and several others whose attendance figures are just below the totals given, must devote a great part of their lives to the game of football.

For secretaries, such as Mr. Joe Wickham, of the Association, and Mr. Jim Brennan, of the League, the time spent in organising and directing is even greater than with honorary officials.

Late Delivery

I have given more instances than one of letters that turned up late—anything up to twenty or thirty years after their postmark. But this is the first time I have heard of one that arrived before it was posted.

A citizen of Dublin has just shown me an envelope which was delivered to him last Tuesday, May 26th. The postmark—one of those red affairs, common enough on letters from England—bears the date May 30th, 1942, or to-morrow. "It would appear," says the recipient, "that the clocks in England are rather more than one hour in advance of ours."

Actually, I suspect that there has been an unusual slip-up on the part of His Majesty's Post Office. The envelope in question contained a dividend warrant, and I gather that it is quite customary for companies, when sending out dividend warrants, to hand large batches into the Post Office some days before the date of despatch, in order that they may be franked—with the appropriate date—at the P.O.'s leisure.

In this case, the franking seems to have been done quite correctly, but by some oversight the batch of envelopes was passed on to the despatch department prematurely.

"Kind Lady"

"Kind Lady," the unusual drama which Maurice O'Brien is putting on at the Olympia with an all-star cast next week, is adapted from a story by Hugh Walpole. It concerns the clever victimisation, by a young artistic waster and his wife, of a good-natured, elderly lady, whom they make prisoner in her own house.

When this play was put on by Lord Longford's company two years ago in Cork the audiences literally held their breath with suspense as they watched the victim's efforts to convince visitors from the outside world of her plight. When, finally, she seemed to be succeeding, they let out a great cheer of relief. Will Dubliners react in the same way to this, the first Dublin production?

The acting of Ria Mooney as the Kind Lady and of Maurice O'Brien as her gaoler should certainly not lack tension. The former, in the part of a jittery spinster awaiting through three acts her faithless lover, and the latter as a suspected murderer, have both given recent proof of their powers in this kind of part.

A Grand Man!

They were discussing a certain county councillor at lunch.

"A powerful man he is," said A, "eighteen and a half stone weight, and smokes a quarter of a pound of cut plug a day, and ——"

"And, I suppose," interjected B, being rather tired of A's voice, "he shaved with a blowlamp."

ST. ULTAN'S HOSPITAL

The infant mortality rate was mentioned by Dr. Ella Webb at the 23rd annual meeting of St. Ultan's Hospital, Charlemont street, Dublin, yesterday. A great many of the infants, she said, had died immediately after admission, showing that treatment had been too long delayed. It was sometimes extremely difficult to diagnose whether a child would respond to treatment, and if there was the faintest hope, the child was admitted.

Mr. Henry Stokes, commenting on the mortality rate, which was 40 per cent., said that 30 per cent. of these cases were hopeless on admission, which left an actual mortality rate of only 10 per cent. Some hospitals prided themselves wrongly on their low mortality rate, but no child, he said, should be allowed to die in a tenement house or slum dwelling. All should be admitted before death.

Other speakers were Miss Barrington, secretary to the Welfare Department of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, and the Lord Mayor, Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D.

Dr. Kathleen Lynn, who presided, paid a tribute to modern mothers.

The annual report showed that there had been 659 admissions to the hospital during the year, and 2,543 new patients, all under 5 years, in the extern department.

The tuberculosis unit continued its good work, the number of cures effected having increased since the "hut" was put into use.

HEALTH INSURANCE

The statutory annual meeting of representatives of insured persons, constituting the Insured Persons' (Local Authorities' Nominees) Members' Electorate, was held at Aras Brugha, O'Connell street, Dublin, to elect five members to the Committee of Management of the National Health Insurance Society for the year commencing August 1. The Most Rev. Dr. Dignan, Bishop of Clonfert, Chairman of the Management Committee, presided, and the following were elected:—Leinster—John Coughlan, 24 Ring street, Inchicore; *Michael Stafford, 1a Inchicore road, Dublin. (Substitute—Ralph James, 75 Leix road, Cabra.) Munster—*Thomas Looney, Waterloo road, Blarney, Cork; *Joseph Cahill, Cashel road, Tipperary. (Substitute—Sean Horgan, New street, Killarney.) Ulster and Connaught—*Michael Gallagher, Lower James's street, Westport. (Substitute—John Doherty, Dromore, Killygordon, Co. Donegal.)

* Re-elected.

OBITUARY

REV. WILLIAM B. LUMLEY

The Rev. William B. Lumley, one of the best-known and most popular ministers of the Methodist Church in Ireland, died at his residence, Adare, Westfield road, Dublin, yesterday morning. Mr. Lumley, who was in the eighty-eighth year of his age, was born at Tullamore, and educated at Wesley College, Dublin. After the usual course of theological training at the Methodist College, Belfast, he entered the ministry in 1875. Of his forty years in the full work of the ministry, twenty-six were spent in Dublin, and nine in Belfast. On his becoming a supernumerary, in 1915, he took pastoral charge for a number of years of the Kingsland Park Church, South Circular road. In addition to his ordinary circuit work he filled many important connexional offices, and for thirty years served the Church with high distinction as the treasurer of its Home Mission Fund. An enthusiast for evangelism, sagacious in counsel, with mind and heart which refused to grow old, Mr. Lumley has long been recognised throughout his own section of the Church as one of its sanest and most fearless leaders. Early in his ministry, he married a daughter of Mr. George Leech, J.P., of Sligo, who died ten years ago. He is survived by two sons, Mr. Harold Lumley, of Dublin, and Mr. Herbert Lumley, of London, the latter being better known under his musical name, "Denis O'Neill."

A Memorial Service will be held in the Methodist Centenary Church, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, to-morrow at 9.30 a.m., and afterwards the interment will take place at Mount Jerome Cemetery.

Limerick, he came to Dublin in 1895, where he became a member of the Keating branch of the Gaelic League. He was a former Chairman of the Senior Hurling and Football League of the G.A.A., and Secretary of the Vintners' Golfing Society. HER STOMACH FELT TIED WITH A ROPE

Indigestion Made Her Afraid to Eat

For years this indigestion sufferer went hungry because she feared the punishing pains which followed a meal. Now she eats anything she likes. Read how she overcame her troubles :—

"I have had gastric trouble so many times and could never get rid of it. I used to feel as if I had a rope tied round me tight. Although I felt very hungry, I was unable to eat much for fear of the after-effects, but since taking two Digestif Rennies after every meal, I can eat and enjoy anything I like. Rennies are the best thing ever found for indigestion." —(Mrs.) A.M.

Digestif Rennies proved the "best thing" for this woman's indigestion because they contain antacids which neutralise acidity; absorbents which reduce stomach gas; and digestive ferments which actively aid digestion. Rennies dissolve in the mouth. They become active at once, because they reach your stomach full strength—not weakened with water. Two Rennies end stomach pain in five minutes.

Backing of the Irish Pound

Sterling Regarded as Most Suitable

IRISH backing for legal tender notes to the extent of 25 per cent. of the issue was advocated in the Dail yesterday by Mr. W. T. Cosgrave (F.G., Cork), when the Central Bank Bill was discussed.

The remuneration of the directors of the new bank, penal taxation on the commercial banks, dead note issue, and the appointment of banking directors on the Bank's board were among the subjects debated.

Apart from any significance that may be attached to the decision of the Government to put the bill through its Committee stage before any further parliamentary business is taken, the measure of interest in the House is small, debate being confined almost entirely to the front benches, except for an occasional plea from the rear for an opportunity to encompass the complication.

Mr. Cosgrave's Proposal

Chief protagonist of the status quo from the viewpoint of the existing banking system, Mr. COSGRAVE asked for the insertion of a new section to provide that the Central Bank should issue to each Associated Bank legal tender notes to the extent of 25 per cent. of the total issue as any associated bank might require, on the security of liquid sound advances by such banks to persons in Eire and for the script held by such banks of any loan of, or guaranteed by the Government of Eire.

He wanted, he said, to ensure that 25 per cent. of the currency would be backed by domestic assets, and he observed that on its face it seemed strange that the national currency here should have, as its sole backing foreign securities, however good.

Mr. O'KELLY, Minister for Finance, said that as he understood it, Deputy Cosgrave's amendment could only be described as revolutionary. It would seem to imply that they were to issue something like 200 per cent. of the circulated tender notes. "That," said Mr O'Kelly, "would mean an immediate and enormous inflation." The present legal tender note circulation was £18,000,000. The passing of Deputy Cosgrave's amendment would increase this to £37,000,000. He had a certain sympathy with what he thought the deputy had in his mind as an objective—that a certain proportion of our note issue should be based on our domestic assets—but he did not think this present proposition was going to achieve that.

RUINOUS EFFECTS

"I have as much faith in this nation's assets and financial ability as anyone in this House," he said. "Both the Currency and the Banking Commissions found it impracticable to use liquid sound advances." He suggested that Mr. Cosgrave's amendment could not achieve the effect which he desired; on the contrary, it would have effects which might easily be ruinous. The wildest faddist in the House could not have proposed anything which would be more harmful than this suggestion by Deputy Cosgrave.

The suggestion was made by Mr. P. McGILLIGAN (F.G., Dublin Townships) that the Minister, who had claimed credit for the Consolidated Bank note as an Irish bank note, was now aiming at the destruction of the pound. One section of the bill was actually headed, "Extinction of the Consolidated Bank Note." They were, he said, in the position that they would not even allow in certain contingencies the associated banks to issue even one fraction of a note against liquid sound advances.

Mr. O'KELLY—There is power to do that. It is very restricted power, I admit, but it is untrue to say that we are cutting ourselves adrift from the power to base our currency on anything native. He was sympathetic to the idea and was perfectly willing to have it examined. He believed that the country was sound enough to enable them to consider that a certain amount of their currency should have a local backing.

General MULCAHY said that the bill was asking them to back all their currency issue by British sterling. The Minister spurned the idea of it being backed by liquid sound advances.

BEST BACKING

Emphasising the variable character of all backing, Mr. DE VALERA said that in all countries stability for monetary units meant a linking up in some way between internal currency and external currency, and inasmuch as trade relations induced it, it was desirable to have the Irish pound interchangeable with the English pound, and the most natural backing to look for was sterling. For one thing, it had the advantage of being likely to remain fairly fixed in normal times, and, for another, it had a whole sterling group to give it stability in relation to the amount of purchasable goods. The trouble with the question of backing was that nothing was fixed now, and the matter was entirely relative. It was felt, he said, that the best backing they could have for their currency was sterling. At one time a dollar backing was suggested, and it was taken into account by the Currency Commission, but they came to the conclusion that the best backing was sterling, which was easy to operate, simplicity being a distinct advantage. If they had good reason for having their pound interchangeable in normal conditions with sterling, and had external backing to maintain the external value of their monetary unit, and if sterling backing was readily available, it was, in general, simpler to have that in ordinary circumstances than to have a complicated system.

Up to the present, there would seem to be no need at all of having any other backing than sterling. If danger threatened it would be the business of the Currency Commission to try to foresee it, and if there was anything likely to be more stable, to try and get a portion of it. In present circumstances it would be very hard to find any external currency that would be absolutely stable, and internal securities also were likely to be variable. When the bill left the House the position will be that the backing will be sterling, but there will be power given to the Minister and the Board to get other securities instead as backing, whether it is for the whole lot or for any particular percentage. He suggested that such power, already contained in the bill covered the purpose of the amendment.

FOR THE HOUSE

Commenting on the fact that there was no Irish security that was readily realisable at short notice, Mr. COSGRAVE argued that if National Loan, not easily saleable in large quantities, if purchased extensively, would affect the market, or, alternatively, a very large sale would disturb the market and upset the calculations of the Central Bank if it held the loan heavily. It would be unfortunate if a Central Bank should have a note issue solely backed by foreign security. They should not detach from the bill the responsibility of issuing notes backed by national assets, and he thought that twenty-five per cent. was a very conservative issue. It was a question to be decided by the House, and not by the Central Bank.

Mr. DE VALERA said that he thought that legal tender could not be delivered to the banks at a lesser cost than it was. Under the general circumstances, it would be very much better not to fix a definite percentage to be backed by domestic assets. If they were to adopt a particular proposal, let them be sure that it would be supported by the considered opinions of the experts in the body which they were setting up.

The House reported progress on the 45th amendment, leaving 24 still to be tackled.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

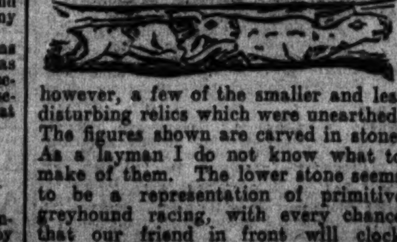

By MYLES NA gCOPALEEN

WE live in strange times. It can now be revealed that there has been in existence for the past year (notwithstanding anything that may be contained in the Offences against the State Act) a body known as the Royal Myles na gCopaleen Institute of Archæology (and you can bet your life that the latter term embraces Palæotology, Eolithic, Palæolithic and Neolithic Anthropology). Some months ago this body sent an expedition to Corca Dorcha (or Corkadorky), the most remote Gaeltacht area in Ireland or anywhere else. Violent excavations have been in progress since, and preliminary reports which are reaching Dublin from the explorers indicate that discoveries are being made which may mean the end of civilisation as we know it; and the end, too, of all our conventional concepts of human, social, artistic, geological and vegetable evolution. If these messages are to be believed, the Corkadorky researches will throw again into the melting pot the whole sad mess of the Tertiary Man, Sir Joseph Prestwich's theory of the essentially pleistocene palæolithic character of the Kent "plateau-gravels," Stonehenge, the glacier theories, the "proofs" of European neolithic eskimo stratigraphs, and even show that the gigantic mammalian skeletons which are honourably housed in our museums are fakes of the first order, perpetrated by "Irish"-Iberian flint-snouted morons (c. 6,000 B.C.), who practised the queer inverted craft of devising posterity's antiquities.

Local observers are hourly awaiting the mergence of the Corkadorky Man, who is expected to prove himself the daddy of every other Man ever pupped by scholarly dirt-shovellers. Unlicensed short-wave radio transmitters are standing by to flash the news to the learned societies of the world. Herr Hoernes, the famous author of Der diluviale Mensch in Europa, is maintaining a 24-hour watch at the earphones in Stockholm with M. Mortillet, whose Le Préhistorique is still read.

A word about this Royal Myles na gCopaleen Institute of Archæology. There is some mystery about the "Royal," many commentators holding that the term has reference to the bar of a certain theatre where it is alleged the first meeting was held and the learned objects of the Institute defined. Be that as it may, it would be rash to suppose that the Institute is just a gatherum of clay-minded prodnoses. Every branch of research has a sub-institute of its own and the heavily documented reports of each sub-institute are appraised, co-ordinated, catalogued, sifted, indexed, cross-referenced, revised, checked and digested by the "Royal Institute," which is essentially an assessive, deductive and archivistic body. Within the "Royal Institute" you have, for instance, the Institute of Comparative Bronzes. This body is concerned only with time-bronze progressions (mostly based on millennial variations in the obliquity of the earth's orbit) and has already disproved practically everything that has appeared in L'Anthropologie : Matériaux pour l'histoire primitive de l'homme, the somewhat inexact French publication. Then again you have the Association of Superior Muck. This body is composed of chemists who spend their time surveying and testing samples of alluvial muck and all manner of water-borne ordure. All this goes to show that the researches now in progress have no relation to scare journalism, "all that is best in Irish life," "progress," or any other shibboleth. It is an exercise in scientific discovery and deduction. There is no margin for emotion, conjecture or error. That is why Herr Hoernes stays up all night in Stockholm.

I have no intention of entering into the contents of the perturbing preliminary reports I have mentioned, or describing the larger objects stated to have been dug up. I illustrate here, however, a few of the smaller and less disturbing relics which were unearthed. The figures shown are carved in stone. As a layman I do not know what to make of them. The lower stone seems to be a representation of primitive greyhound racing, with every chance that our friend in front will clock 30.15. The upper stone may mean that we once had a national sport of fish-racing.

An observer on the spot, and who assisted in some of the excavations, has given me a somewhat far-fetched story which I pass on for what it is worth (and not, mark you, for what it is not worth). According to him the primeval human remains unearthed were fossilised, and bore on the legs certain serrated markings that suggested corduroy. Various other aspects of hair remains, neckwear remains and whatnot provided an impressive accumulation of evidence that the Corkadorky Man was an ice age fly-boy and the progenitor of the present indefeasible Irish nation. It will be a nice cup of tea for the G.A.A. if this is proved to be the case.

I will have more to say on this subject.

They were charged with having obtained £6 from Mrs. Sheila M. Gray was charged with having sold 7 cwt. 1 qr. and 22lb. of logs to Miss Catherine Lenehan, Harcourt street, for £2 18/-; and 1 ton 7 cwt. and 14lb. to Mrs. Sheila M. Moorehead, Upper Fitzwilliam street, for £6, the fixed price being £3 a ton. O'Connor, Cunningham and Corcoran were charged with having assisted Gray in selling the blocks.

SERIOUS CHARGES

Gerard Kilcullen (19), Irish welter-weight champion boxer, Eccles street, and Patrick Geraghty (24), Goldsmith street, were remanded by District Justice McCarthy, Dublin, yesterday, on a charge of having broken into the premises of A. H. Smith, Upper Dominick street, broken two safes, stolen property and attempted to set fire to the place. Private Patrick Boland (24) was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by District Justice McCarthy, Dublin, yesterday for falsely representing himself as an A.R.P. official at various houses in the city, and in Dun Laoghaire, Sandycove and Glenageary, and with committing a number of larcenies.

PROPERTY AUCTION

At their auction to-day in 4 Grafton street Messrs. Corrigan and Company disposed of all lots offered at satisfactory prices, including profit head rent out of licensed house 143 Lower Baggot street; the business premises investment, 33 Upper O'Connell street; the private residence, 8 St. Clement's road, Drumcondra.

WOOL

BRADFORD.—Although there has been welcome simplification of procedure with regard to the delivery of goods for the utility clothing scheme, there is nothing at the moment to encourage spinners and manufacturers to enter into new commitments. The shortage of output is felt most in worsted spinning, where young people are largely engaged.

British Army in Burma Now in India

General Wavell's Tribute to the Troops

GENERAL WAVELL, Commander-in-Chief, British forces in India, announced in New Delhi yesterday, at a Press Conference, Reuter announces, that the campaign is over in Burma "for the time being," and that the Army is now out of Burma.

"General Alexander's army," said General Wavell, "has passed through the defence lines on the Indo-Burma frontier. The main responsibility for resisting invasion now rests with the Eastern army and fresh troops. The withdrawal is not the result of defeat, but because we were unable to complete the supply route to Burma before the monsoon."

Sittang River Losses

General Wavell declared: "We could have held Rangoon and Lower Burma longer" but for the Sittang River battle, where we suffered heavy losses. In the whole of the campaign it was really our only defeat. We lost the greater part of two brigades, and it determined the fate of Lower Burma. With the loss of the command of the sea we could not hold Rangoon, and once we lost Rangoon it was practically impossible to get reinforcements on any scale into Burma until the Burma-Assam road was through. All that we could get in had to be by air. That, of course, was very limited.

"The army of General Alexander had to fight on unrelieved and unsupported against a superior enemy, and there is no doubt that they put up a very good fight. Another disheartening part of the job was the inability to give the air support that the troops deserved. Our total number of troops in Burma were never very large. General Alexander's fighting strength never amounted really to very much more than two very weak divisions, or one very strong division. The enemy was a very great deal stronger.

INDIA'S DEFENCE

"Very considerable reinforcements in all arms from the United Kingdom have lately arrived in India, including very large numbers of A.A. crews. In Calcutta and Ceylon the scale of air defence is higher than anything Singapore ever had, even at the maximum of its strength during the Malayan fighting, and the defence of India is, undoubtedly, gaining very greatly in strength.

"I do not want you to think for a moment that we are complacent or satisfied." General Alexander's army, he said, was not beaten. It was in very good shape, and more than four-fifths of the troops sent from India to Burma had returned.

General Wavell stated that all the wounded and sick had been evacuated from Burma by air or by ground transport.

MESSAGE TO ARMY

In a message to the Burma Army General Wavell said—

"I have been fully aware of the very difficult conditions under which you have been fighting in Burma for the last few months against greatly superior numbers, with the enemy in control of the air, and with no relief reinforcements. These conditions have been inevitable since the Japanese gained temporary command of the sea, which made the holding of Rangoon impossible.

"The enemy has been able to bring into Burma heavy reinforcements, while the absence of communication with India has prevented us from reinforcing or relieving you. Your main task during these months has been to occupy and delay large Japanese forces, so as to give time for the defences of India to be reinforced and reorganised, and this you have most successfully and gallantly accomplished in spite of all the difficulties."

GENERAL ALEXANDER

General Alexander, G.O.C. Burma, yesterday issued a General Order of the day, saying: "Our task has been carried out with little or no air support, and the struggle has been hard and critical."

With the withdrawal of the Army from Burma his command of the armed forces in Burma had come to an end. "Various formations and units of the army," he went on, "have now to prepare themselves for the next round with the enemy, and I feel sure that they will set about their task with courage and determination confident in the ultimate victory of British arms."

STOCK MARKET REPORTS

DUBLIN EXCHANGE

There was little or no improvement in trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and price movements, which were again small, showed no decided trend.

Home Government Funds held steady to harder, and Financial Agreement Loan rose to 109½, while National Security Loan moved up to 103⅞. War Loan eased the turn to 104⅝.

Banks were well maintained, and Hibernians added pence at 43/6. Guinness units came in sellers and dipped to 91/-, but Cairnes Ord. hardened to 15/7½.

Rails were dull for choice. Great Southern Ord. and Gtd. both registered falls of a point. Great Northern Ord. eased to 20⅝, but other issues held up well.

Dublin Transport Ord., on renewed support, improved to 18/-, and A. Armstrong Pref. tended higher. Clondalkin Paper Ord. and Irish Tanners Ord. marked small shrinkages, but Irish Sugar Pref. firmed up to 25/-.

British Industrials were moderately busy, but the tendency was dull. Imperial Tobaccos declined to 122/- and Shell Transport Ord. gave way to 45/-. Coats Ord. tended higher and Dunlop Rubbers rose to 26/7½. Imperial Chemical Ord. and Woolworth Ord. both moved against holders and Cammell Laird Ord. quoted 8/4½.

LONDON EASIER

A tendency to wait for further news from Russia and Libya kept operators in a cautious mood on the London Stock Exchange yesterday. There was little business doing in Gilt-edged securities, and, as a result, prices were inclined to ease in places. In Home Rails, Great Westerns continued to attract buyers. Quieter conditions prevailed in the Overseas section. Argentine issues were featureless and "Canpacs" were lower.

Colliery issues went dull on the labour dispute, and Motors and Aircrafts were inclined to sag. In the Textile section Coats hardened to 35/4½, but Courtaulds were offered. Elsewhere Sudans receded to 26/- and Brazil Tractions to 13¼.

Kaffir dividend-payers lacked interest, and several descriptions gave way. Blyvoors weakened 3d. further and so did Libanon.

The Oil Share market was uninteresting.

How much should a good suit cost ?

It depends, of course, on what you mean by a good suit. If you mean a suit made from good material, carefully cut, and skilfully tailored, a suit that will still look a good suit after long and hard wear—in short, if you mean a suit tailored to Seale's standards of quality; why, it costs much less than you'd expect in these days. In fact, you can get one for as little as 7½ guineas.

Cricket Cup Prospects

(BY P. D. MacWEENEY.)

IT was extremely unfortunate that last week-end should have turned out so unfavourable for cricket; for, in normal conditions, six matches would have been played off in the Senior League. As it was, Saturday was a wash-out completely, and only one match on Monday could be concluded, Merrion beating Pembroke. Dublin University and Phœnix played a draw in College Park, but on neither Saturday nor Monday could anything be done at Rathmines, so the two-day fixture between Leinster and Clontarf was abandoned, and re-arranged for the end of August. Possibly, the abandonment of Saturday's return game between Trinity and Merrion will add interest and excitement to their meeting later on; for it probably will be one of the key matches of the competition.

Certainly Merrion's disposal of Pembroke was very decisive, whereas Trinity did not shape too well against Phœnix in any respect; for their bowling did not appear to be very dangerous, their catching was really weak, and their batting patchy. They are obviously far better suited to hard wickets than soft for their attack; under conditions like Saturday's, earlier use might be made of the slow left-hander, N. B. Hool, who caused the Phœnix batsmen more trouble than anyone else.

To-morrow will see the start of the Leinster Senior Cup, which will be run on different lines to last season. Instead of having the eight first division seniors and as many of the second division as think it worth while entering, there are now two separate competitions, a new trophy having been presented for the second division. This is a far better plan than the previous one, for the second division clubs, while reasonably strong in bowling, had not the batting to cope with the division one opposition.

Three of to-morrow's four matches seem clear-cut, for Trinity, Leinster and Pembroke ought to dispose of Civil Service, Clontarf and Y.M.C.A., respectively, in the course of the afternoon, but Phœnix and Merrion, in Phœnix Park, might develop into a hard struggle. Merrion already have defeated Phœnix very easily in the league, but it is difficult to forecast what Phœnix will do, and last season, it may be recalled, they tumbled out Merrion very cheaply to win comfortably in the first round. This game might take up an evening or two of next week before it is finished.

The match which the Leinster Cricket Union had hopes of staging against a North of Ireland team on Sunday week has been cancelled.

Need for Control in Inter-City Cup

WHILE some critics may have exaggerated the importance of various incidents which marked the Inter-City Cup competition and speak of the matches having created bitterness rather than good feeling between North and South, it seems to be true that little unpleasantness remains in the minds of the vast majority of Dublin spectators.

The games have been as great a financial success as the promoters expected, notwithstanding the half-baked proposition which was originally put before the football authorities in Dublin. A great deal has been learned in the hard school of experience, and there seems to be every justification for carrying on the Inter-City Cup competition in the future.

The public wants inter-city games, particularly competitive inter-city games. But if the competition is not to end at some stage or other in disorder, it is necessary that proper control should be exercised by the recognised football authorities in Belfast and Dublin; it may be necessary to create a special commission, appointed and controlled by the two associations, but to which the I.F.A. and F.A.I. would delegate their powers so far as the inter-city competition is concerned.

It has been said that with the clubs running the competition, as this year, the referees in each area are careful not to offend their local clubs in case they are refused the control of future matches; and there have been allegations of minor breaches of the strict code of impartiality that should guide a referee. It is our view that there is very little justification for that allegation, so far as the Dublin matches are concerned; not having seen the Belfast matches, we are not in a position to express an opinion about them.

If, however, the referees were responsible only to a commission representative of the two associations, the suspicion of partiality would be removed, for a Dublin referee would be answerable to Belfast as well as Dublin members of such a commission. It is known that one referee was given instructions not to favour any side, let it be clear, but to try to avoid giving offence by being too strict!

There is plenty of time before next year's competition takes place to have it put on a properly controlled basis. It may be the duty of the two associations to take first action in the matter.

THE OPEN FOURSOMES AT DUN LAOGHAIRE

The East of Ireland champion, Joseph Carr, and B. F. Smyth are going strongly for the Irish Open Foursomes cups at Dun Laoghaire, but it should be a very close match between them and D. M. Hogan and R. Wallace in the third round this evening. In the second round, Carr and Smyth beat S. B. Jones and C. S. Hartnett at the 16th, but to do so had to play exceptionally good golf in unfavourable conditions. They were out in 33 for a two holes lead, and when they finished were three under fours. Hogan and Wallace disposed of a strong Clontarf combination, Joseph O'Reilly and A. Smith, on the home green, where Wallace holed a long putt for the match, Reilly failing for the hole with a shorter one.

Second Round—J. B. Carr (Sutton) and B. Smyth (Kilcroney) (14) beat S. B. Jones and C. S. Hartnatt (Dun Laoghaire) (6½), 3 and 2; D. M. Hogan (Dun Laoghaire) and R. Wallace (Delgany) (4½) beat J. O'Reilly and H. Smith (Clontarf) (18), 1 up; J. S. Wall (Woodbrook) and T. P. Early (Hermitage) (9) beat E. L. Warren and J. O'Rourke (Dun Laoghaire) (8), 3 and 2; T. J. Lynch (Dun Laoghaire) and H. J. McAuley (Foxrock) beat E. F. Duke and V. McAllister (Dun Laoghaire) (9), 1 up.

Try this now. Run your tongue round your mouth—do you notice it . . . a rough woolly feeling. Smokers' fur has got a hold, and is staining your teeth. But don't worry, you can stop this fur from ruining the look of your teeth.

Dentists know smokers' fur is caused by excess acid in the mouth. Kill the acid and you shift the fur. What is the scientific way to destroy mouth acid? 12,000 dentists say 'Milk of Magnesia' is the most effective antacid known. They recommend smokers to use the toothpaste containing 'Milk of Magnesia'—the only toothpaste containing it—Phillips' Dental Magnesia.

Commence fighting mouth acid to-night. Get a tube of Phillips' Dental Magnesia and clean your teeth with it each night and morning. Then you'll feel the difference; no more morning mouth; no more stale breath. Instead you'll have teeth which look clean, feel clean, are clean; a sweet mouth to give new zest to smoking. A mouth that will say Good morning! and mean it.

IRISH CLASSIC RACES

Our Curragh Correspondent writes:—Mr W. J. Kelly's Cara Koosh (Joe Canty), accompanied by Fairy Light, engaged in the Irish 1,000 Guineas, went a mile and a half at a nice pace at the Curragh on Wednesday morning. Cara Koosh was third in the Irish 1,200 Guineas to Windsor Slipper and Grand Inquisitor, and has since then improved greatly. Windsor Slipper also has been doing well in his preparation for the Irish Derby, and the general opinion is that he again will beat all the other horses. The Aga Khan's representative in the Irish 1,000 Guineas will be Mejideh, who continues to train on satisfactorily.

YACHTING

Representative fleets took part in last evening's series of Dublin Bay S.C. handicaps, though, so far as the 21-Ft. Class was concerned, their race was not so much a handicap as match sailing, pure and simple, for all five boats started on the scratch mark. So it was that Garavoge (Martin and Crabb), first to cross the winning line, 27 secs. ahead of Innisfallen (J. Spiro), took first prize by that margin, while Geraldine, only 8 secs. further astern, was third with Oola and Maureen close on her heels. There were half a dozen 17-Footers out in the race for that class, but, though Eileen (T. Roche) was first home, Silver Moon (J. H. Guilford), finishing 55 secs. afterwards, was well inside her handicap of 2 mins. for first prize. Rosemary (A. F. Thompson) was third. Once more, Minx (A. J. Mooney) led the fleet home in the Mermaids' Class, with Daphne second, but neither could allow their handicaps of 3 mins. to Mantis (H. E. Bell) or to Dabchick (H. Osterberg), who secured first and second prizes. In the Cruisers' handicap the order of the leaders at the close was Marama, Nepenthe and Sonya, the first named saving her time for first prize.

F.A.I. CUP ATTENDANCE RECORD

Mr. Joseph Wickham, in his report to be submitted to the annual meeting of the F.A.I. on next Saturday, states that the membership stands at 367 clubs, as against 424 last season, the total including 45 schoolboy teams. Despite transport difficulties, the attendance at the final between Dundalk and Cork United was 34,258 and the receipts were £2,062.

JUNIOR F.A. MEETING

The Hon. Treasurer's statement at the annual meeting of the Junior Committee of the F.A.I. last night showed a slight loss on the season's working; but, everything considered, the report and balance sheet were regarded as satisfactory. Reilly, J. Troy, and T. Kelly. Chairman, Mr. A. F. Roche was presented with the long service certificate.

O'Connor (City of Dublin), who did 62 mins. 43 secs. The handicap award was won by S. Burke (Marathon), who returned 56 mins. 20 secs., off 7 mins. 56 secs. The City of Dublin trio won the team award. The field was one of the biggest of the year, forty-eight starting.

Every time she moved
made her groan

THIS woman's experience may sound too good to believe, but it is quite similar to that of thousands of others:

"I had terrible backache, and every sudden movement made me groan with pain. Then I read an advertisement about Kruschen in my paper, and I decided to try the treatment. With the first bottle I felt a marked improvement. I am now taking my second bottle, and I feel better every day. I have no more pain at all."—(Mrs.) R. J.

The cause of backache—like the cause of rheumatism—is Uric Acid. This Uric Acid is in the form of crystals as sharp as needles, which lodge in muscles and joints and give you the piercing pain that makes life a torment.

There is only one way to clear the Uric Acid out of your bloodstream and that is, in the liquid you pass through your kidneys. It is no use taking mere bowel-opening salts. They can't get at the acid in your kidneys. Kruschen is five times more effective than other salts in stimulating your kidneys and washing away the painful acid crystals. You can see the effect of Kruschen in the increased amount of water you pass.

Start taking Kruschen today. You will feel a wonderful difference after the first few doses. Every chemist sells Kruschen in 1/9 bottles.
